

Journal of Studies on Alcohol

Editorial Referees

Articles submitted for publication in the Journal are reviewed by editorial referees whose counsel and critique weigh heavily in determining which papers are accepted and what their published content will be. Most of the scientists and scholars who perform the task of refereeing are not members of the Editorial Board—who alone could not cope with the large volume of submissions. The editors here express their appreciation for the help of the following colleagues who served anonymously as referees on reviews from July 1999 to July 2000. You have shared the editorial function and contributed vastly to the maintenance of scientific standards. We thank you!
